Abuse to children is when ...

- you physically harm or threaten to harm them
- they hear or see violence directed towards their parent or sibling
- you excessively criticise, reject or withhold affection, praise or attention
- you use physical or social isolation as punishment
- you use them to get back at your partner and involve them in adult issues

A healthy relationship is when you are ...

- paying thoughtful attention to your child
- being respectful and empathetic
- communicating with your child and listening to them
- prioritising individual time with your child
- encouraging your child
- trying to understand things from your child's perspective

Family violence can be ... Physical, Emotional or Sexual

- You don't have to be hit to be hurt
- It can involve partners, parents, children, siblings, extended family, carers and past intimate relationships.
- It occurs when someone harms you, controls you or makes you feel afraid
- Just being exposed to family violence is damaging

A healthy relationship is when you are ...

- treated with respect
- safe and never scared
- free to say no
- free to make your own choices
- free to see your friends and family when you want
- able to be yourself
- able to compromise, say sorry and talk arguments out
